Xi Jinping's Last Chance

Xi Jinping is one of my favorites.

I. Let's start with "son of a bitch"

From the day he came to power, this once dejected party "dog" fell into my eyes, which also aroused great interest from others, but no one dared to talk openly inside the wall; there were also many overseas pawns, and my writings had attracted countless entanglements and abuses.

Before the Cultural Revolution, he was close to the death of his family. The name of his gangster bastard was not invented by me. It was a proper noun of the official mainland China (later called the Revolutionary Committee) during the Cultural Revolution. Ordinary people want to be "dogs"? There is no door!

At the beginning of the Cultural Revolution, some high-ranking children in the party sang "Ghosts See Sorrow" and compared with each other who was better at flattering Mao. They (she) are rampant at school, in the workplace or on the street, which is irresistible. But Xi has long been branded as a "dog" by the people and public opinion. He did not dare to intervene in the youth martial arts on the street, and only had a timid mentality to escape. Although he tried his best to avoid it, the little teenager was still detained, in which he suffered all the abuse and humiliation, which was inhuman torture. After he escaped home by chance, he was scolded by his mother, and was sent back to the young Detention in the detention center. You may not understand that this is the mother of the revolutionary family!

Melancholy, self-blame, anger... The helplessness of being forced to drop out of school, the sadness of being forced to be on the street, and the eyes of reclamation were met with the white eyes or ridicule of countless teenagers of the same age and the poking behind them. We have no way of knowing his bear appearance and despair after being bullied frequently, but it must be firmly engraved in the hearts of those "compathers". These tortures and pains have undoubtedly created a lifelong knot of inferiority.

Only those who have passed through that era can see through his youthful soul of "turning over for liberation" and his life that is doomed to tragedy. Of course, he is not the only "dog" of the party who has had this experience, but he has been called a beast earlier than most people. For example, Liu Yuan's brother Liu Yunzhen and sister Liu Tao, that is, a large number of "dogs" who became famous after the Cultural Revolution. Revolutionary families are inherently human. Calling each other animals is one of the rules of the game in the party. They are not as rejected as the people at the bottom, and sometimes they are even proud of it.

The ferocious faces of those bystanders emerged countless times in his mind, and they did not completely disappear until he was old. They shouted: Give his dog father a thousand feet, ten thousand feet, so that he will never turn over!

However, the appearance of Liang Jiahe suddenly freed Xi from the nightmare of the capital. He, who has been thinking of as a beast since he was eleven years old, has been relieved for a short time since then.

The local villagers only know that the descendants of high-ranking officials from the capital read more books than them, and they also sing the Beijing dialect. Although he can't do farm work, his obedient appearance is quite likable. From then on, after more than ten years of being sensible, Xi began to understand the taste of being a human being, and also tasted the warmth brought by human dignity for the first time. Therefore, you should understand the myth of the tall "Liangjia River" piled up on the streets of the mainland for more than ten years.

The old father told Xiao Xi that the Xiangzi was depressed in northern Shaanxi, thanks to the rescue of himself and the boss Zhidan, he survived. Later, so many anthologies, quotations and ideas were all waste paper in my father's eyes. The general's revenge still calls himself the red sun. Thinking of the death of the boss, what a bullshit red? That's the yellow tone of our "Sesame Oil" in northern Shaanxi: "I don't want to die for three days, oh, my third brother."

For more than 7 years and countless nights, Xiao Xi looked up at the sky and fantasized about his way out. He cursed the fake Bodhisattva in Beijing countless times. He hurt our whole family so much. He meditated on his father's instructions: the Bodhisattva in the temple in our hometown (Henan or Northwest) is the most spiritual and can give you the last chance to worship more.

Therefore, after Xi came to power, he kept posting book lists, concocting ideas, self-recating leaders, and guiding more than 200 world directions... Of course, I don't forget to worship Bodhisattva. You should also understand that those indiscriminate things have long exceeded his father's curse and abuse of Lao Mao in those years. This is the moment when the Xi family raised their eyebrows and exhaled.

All of Xi Jinping's unimaginable behaviors are related to the shadow of his youth. Xi, who had suffered all the hardships in his early years and passed the year of "knowing the fate of heaven", was suddenly pulled to the top level. He, who is used to worshiping God and fooling Buddha, is naturally convinced that he is the role of the son of heaven. Those performances of the Tang Dynasty are the best footnotes. So it is not difficult for you to understand that the prosperous "Chinese Dream" has been staged everywhere in the mainland for more than ten years.

However, since his highest light in 2018, I have dared to predict his post-era chaos and maliciously pierced the painting of his Chinese dream. His dream of an emperor is more exciting and seductive than Yuan Shikai's dream of spring and autumn. The reason is that he has more and more profound inferiority knots than Xiang Zizi, who did chores in the Peking University Library at that time.

The greater the inferiority, the greater the arrogance and arrogance. This common psychological compensation effect is abnormally developed and transcendent in this country. Under the influence of the Party, Xi Zixiao has been suspicious, and his inferiority and arroganceous personality traits are extremely prominent. Coupled with superstition and lack of basic humanities, logic and common sense education, Xi's three views have stayed in the feudal culture of the northwestern countryside for many years and cannot extricate themselves. Building tombs for the previous emperors is everywhere in history, and he will naturally not be absent. So you should understand that his father's cemetery is at least a hundred times larger than Mao's crystal cemetery.

You may refute that they have become emperors. The climax is amazing. What's the last chance? Is it eating sour grapes? I can't blame you. There are too many laymen who regard the emperor's dream as the Chinese dream. After all, the "scenery" is also the expectation of many "Chinese people". Is it in the heart?

II. "Rumors" are rampant, trapped beasts

One night, when it rained and dreamed, an old man appeared in front of him. Marshal Zhang wore a gray tweed military uniform, holding a pot of yellow wine in his hand, and smiled, "Do you want to take the road I didn't take?" I recognized it. It was a man who slanted his eyes and laughed at his small hair.

Since the spring of 2024, "rumors" about the Beijing regime and Xi Jinping have been flying all over the sky, which may be the most widely and fastest period of rumors in Chinese history. It's clear that it's the Internet era, but you have to block the Internet and ban it. You feel that you have avenged the revenge of being a "son of a bitch" who can't speak. The final evil fruit naturally falls on their own heads. Many people take ridicule of you or play with you as fun, including the three virtues around you. And the people who once sneered or mocked you in those years refused to miss this opportunity.

The experience and maturity of human nature, Xi Jinping's development is too late. These "rumors" are true or false, false and true, which is enough for the materials needed by countless historical dramas in the future.

However, the prediction and analysis of these "rumors" have appeared in my blog almost ten years ago. Generally speaking, it is basically not a hit. Interested netizens can browse it carefully.

It is my interest to red Jinping. The key to raising the question is not whether the main axis or the central point is based on the nature of the regime, the in-depth comprehensive discussion of the old cultural habits and the personality of the students themselves, and whether there is room for readers and future generations to think about, which is also a factor that cannot be ignored.

In the previous article, I provided a path to think about the direction of all kinds of "rumors": he has lost the "party heart, people's heart and military heart", which is the main axis of the inevitable occurrence of the event; there will be no rigid coup that will rule the world with one shot, because the whole party has to act, and the illusion of maintaining the unity of the Party is the "convention number" of all factions; Hu Wen and other bosses played the role of "fixing the needle of Neptus"; Zhang Dashuai's unique role is because of the "dog" culture hidden behind it, which is not well known to outsiders or young people, which is a breakthrough to uncover old habits.

In short, Xi's prosperous China is a feudal authoritarian system, imperial slave culture, coupled with the mixed body of the Marxism-Leninist totalitarian system and the corresponding propaganda and deception of hypocrisy intertwined with each other, and the use of the digital technology era, which can be said to be "all five poisons". The latter is originally a neutral thing, but it amplifies the bad habits of the rotten system and culture. Exposing or refuting these "rumors" often requires rational thinking and careful human observation. The process of cultural maturity is bound to be accompanied by rumors flying all over the world, which will eventually lead to the collapse of the society as a whole.

III. Strange silence after the highlight

He hasn't made a decision "in person" for a long time. I even gave it a new name: silent mode.
No more patrolling, no more talking about "abition", and no longer high-profile layout of the new era. People sensed the silence, but no one spoke. On TV, the camera is still eye-catching; in the newspaper, the headline is still big; but the "ubiquitous" figure seems to be quietly fading. The hopes and fears of a whole generation have accumulated in front of the stage, but now they have been almost transparently dulled by time and reality.

This is not the first time he stands at the crossroads of his life, but it may be the last time.

Xinhua News Agency recently reported that "Xi Jinping, General Secretary of the Central Committee of China, arrived in Lhasa by special plane at noon on the 20th to attend the celebration of the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Tibet Autonomous Region. Wang Huning and Cai Qi, members of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of China, arrived by the same plane. Xi Jinping will attend the celebration conference held at 10 a.m. on the 21st, which is the first time he has attended the celebration of the establishment of the Tibet Autonomous Region.

Don't underestimate this news. The hidden story behind it may be more exciting, which is enough to shake the course of modern Chinese history. But I still want to talk about his last chance. Is it an opportunity for the sublimation of highlights or the countdown of life? Please judge by yourself.

IV. Mirror image of history

If you dream of an emperor, you must have a woman. Although it is no longer possible to have seventy-two concubines of the Three Palaces and Six Courts, it is also a standard match for many actors to be good together. The descendants of my old Xi must be indispensable for that Xiang Zizi can do. Xi Jinping never dreamed that the collapse of the emperor's dream came from his Dream Snow Women published in Hong Kong.

Lao Mao's majesty was able to ask Lao Xi's wife to take the initiative to send the "dog" back to the cell to meet the requirements of a group of red guards. Today's emperor wants to destroy a book, and what's wrong with deploying it by himself?

He didn't understand why the world couldn't feel his lewd power? Is it that the strength is not enough, or is it that the "dogs" of the second generation of Hong Dynasty are obstructing the old Xi family who has turned over to become the king?

He guessed right. Yang Lanlan, a mysterious Chinese girl living in Australia, was exposed, and the content was so wonderful. The source of the news and the shocking details come from within the system, but they are magnified countless times through overseas. It confirmed the hidden princess culture under the imperial power, and also smoothed out the story of stealing the treasury property. It is rumored on the Internet that Zhang Dashai's fatal speech was posted after the article for future analysis and verification.

History will not be copied, but it always rhymes. The illusion of maintaining the unity of the Party is the "command number" of all factions, but this dead end will definitely be broken. In his later years, Mao lost control in internal strife, Deng was trapped in succession in his later years, and Jiang Hu retreated silently. Xi Jinping did not believe in fate. He wanted to "redefine" China and try to shape the republic into a work in a stereotype. However, what history is best at is not obedience, but backlash. It gave him the "height of centralization" and buried the "no one's sharing abyss".

Who can tell him that in a system that does not allow the discussion of responsibility, the silence of the supreme power is itself a kind of sentence.

After three re-elections, the system was exhausted, the people were confused, and the external pressure was heavy.

The echo of zeroing is still there, the data of youth unemployment is repeatedly folded, and real estate is like a collapsed carpet, swallowing the dream of the middle-aged people. He once called everything a "great change that has never been in a hundred years", but now he finds that no way out is prepared for him. Can he break the cycle? Or are they like those "strategic concepts" and "millennium projects", which will eventually turn into an empty shell that no one is responsible for?

My mind returned to the lightless night of Liangjiahe. Waiting for the opportunity to come tremblingly under the starry sky. He thought of Lao Mao's last days again, and he must not be the second to be Hua Guofeng!

V. The last chance

Can a self-deempted emperor give himself a soft landing opportunity? He can let go of his fist, return his power, and let the system speak. You can also admit your mistakes, so that history can correct the bias. Give up deification, be a human being again, and change from the son of heaven back to the ordinary - this may be the last trump card he left for himself, his family, the system, and even for history.

However, the price of this sobriety is too high, which may be large enough to destroy the myth that he has built brick by brick for ten years. It is big enough to destroy the burden of shame that the Xi family has endured for decades, and the old father's great mausoleum that could not withstand the explosion.

"Spring and Autumn" has a saying: "Gentlemen hide weapons in their bodies and wait for the time to move."
It's a pity that times have changed. Today, what is hidden is data, Tibetan is the people, and what is moved is only currency and borders. How can a person retreat from the altar and not let the altar collapse and hit himself? This is a problem he must face - or rather, it is the inheritance that future generations must finish on his behalf.

"History is sometimes not used to remember who is great, but to remember who refuses to leave."

On the eve of going to Tibet, at 301 Hospital, the two "dogs" seemed to be comforting each other and saying goodbye.

Zhang Youxia was also one of the white-eyed or mocking bystanders during the Cultural Revolution. They are also from Shaanxi, and they are all the second generation of the Northwest Gang, and later they naturally got closer. The success of the 20th National Congress of the Communist Party of China was due to the fact that he was young in his hometown, and Zhang Youxia was the first meritorious minister.

But everyone in the world can see that the son of heaven does not want people to know the cowardly appearance of the past, and is more afraid of recalling the embarrassment and depression of the past. Wanting to erase the memory of the world is like destroying Hong Kong, erasing Xi Jinping and his women in Causeway Bay.

But in Zhang Youxia's eyes, that Xi cub is nothing!

Xi's so-called "anti-corruption and integrity" directly refers to Zhang Youxia, who is about to go to Qincheng.

The quarrel from April 2024 until the complete turn of the Third Plenary Session of the Central China was the continuation of the struggle of the "dogs" when they were young. Although Zhang's father was the "patriarch" of Jinggang Mountain, he had been entangled with various gangs. In order to avoid the Cultural Revolution, the little knight found a way not to go to the countryside, but went to the barracks. But at that time, the "dogs" were also graded. Xi's class belonged to the lowest dogs in the "downed" capitalist population. It was completely a daydream to want to go to the barracks.

"I can't save the country for the son of heaven. I have an army but no power." He said, "I was sting to join Russia against the United States, but I was tied to two wheels." Xi Jinping stared at him for a long time: " But you are still alive for more than half a century."

Zhang Dashuai sighed, "Yes, I'm alive, but I didn't say anything."

This sentence is like a stone sinking to the bottom of the water - he is talking about himself, and it seems to be talking about China now. If you join Russia, it is a gamble; if you don't join Russia, it's also a trap. You are not Deng Xiaoping's pawn, nor are you the shadow of Mao Zedong. You are you - but can you bear the price of this status?

Marshal Zhang thought of Yang Lanlan and the misappropriated military funds of more than trillions. You borrowed me to avenge Lao Mao, Lao Deng's revenge, and now it's even. I'm still entangled in Xi's 14-person assassination list: Li Keqiang and Jiang's core have left first, and Hu Wen and I almost became your ghosts.

"Retreat with a decent look!" But without saying it, Zhang Dashuai pointed to the map and said, "If you don't turn around, you will change from the core of Asia to a bystander. The great powers will not reserve a place for you. They will only ask you how much family you have left.

Xi Jinping lit an unlit cigarette and was silent.
"Maybe it's too to be to time." He said, "I can return the economy to the market, let China and the United States resume dialogue, and let go of confrontation... Maybe we can solve this situation."
Zhang Dashuai smiled and said, "Can you trust your people? If you leave, will they let you go?" "Hong Kong people will let you go?" "Overseas hostile forces will listen to you?" But he said to himself, "Who in the army will listen to you?"

"You are not afraid of external enemies, but you are afraid of the internal one who can't trust. You will make yourself the protagonist of the whole play. When you leave, who will take over the play?" I also have Cai Qi, Wang Xiaohong... There are many hidden piles," he muttered to himself.

In a living room in Diaoyutai, several old standing committee members sat up straight, and the tea did not continue for the second time. There is an uneasy and familiar feeling in the air, just like some twilights before Lin Biao's exit and Zhao Ziyang's suspension. No one said it clearly, but we both knew that the situation could no longer be stabilized by one person, and authority began to change from a myth to a legend.

A voice said softly, "He can't see the problem, but we can see the price."

The other person looked down at the material in his hand: "It is said that we are going back to the Soviet Union. I think it's more like Beijing in 1976 - lively, chaotic, and no one really talks."

No one mentioned his name directly. Those two words have become secret words, secret codes, and some kind of taboos. They didn't dare to be clear and didn't want to let go completely. Because this is the essence of this system: both fear of collapse and fear of sobriety.

But a younger deputy state-level cadre suddenly said, "He doesn't need loyalty now, but steps. If no one picks up for him, he has to accompany him.

The "inspection" of Tibet that has just passed, on the surface, the scenery is still the same, but it can no longer hide the inner anxiety and the traces of being photographed; and the drums of the military parade are near, which is the symbol of power. Xi is still laying out, looking forward to the miracle of Liang Jiahe: can the list of the 14 people still be put in one nest? And the rumbling sound of Zhang Dashuai's tank has drowned out the noise of the capital... It's still the aftergow of the street "dogs" fighting nearly 60 years ago, but this time they all wear real guys.

Recently, a domestic insider revealed to overseas that Zhang Youxia's speech in the army directly pointed out that Xi Jinping was embezzling military funds, and a total of about 2 trillion yuan flowed into overseas private accounts. The following is a summary of Zhang Youxia's internal speech:

Zhang Youxia first greeted everyone and said, "Dear old leaders, military and political colleagues: Today, as a veteran and an old party member, I, Zhang Youxia, stand here with infinite loyalty to the Party, the country and the people, and talk about a few heartfelt words.

"At present, the situation at home and abroad is turbulent, and the army shoulders the sacred mission of protecting the family and the country and maintaining stability. We must defend the Party's original intention and protect the interests of the people with iron discipline and strong will. The army is the pillar of the country and the children of the people. We must resolutely oppose any practice that shakes the military and harms the interests of the people.

Zhang Youxia directly pointed out: "Our party has always emphasized criticism and self-criticism, which is the magic weapon for us to maintain our advanced nature. Chairman Mao once said that everyone should tell everyone if there is a mistake. Today, I will say bluntly in this spirit that Comrade Xi Jinping's family has about two trillion yuan in overseas assets. The source of this wealth is unclear, including bank accounts, real estate, stocks and trust funds. With such a huge scale, it is absolutely impossible to accumulate public income and allowances as the General Secretary of the Party.

"What's more painful is that these huge amounts of funds are suspected of being misappropriated from military expenses, and about two trillion yuan have flowed overseas. Every penny of the army is squeezed out of the national finance, which is the hard-earned money of the people. But these funds appeared in the real estate project investment funds in Australia and Thailand. This is by no means a legitimate income.

Zhang Youxia scolded: "Our soldiers sleep on the street in the frontier and ride the wind and break the waves in the sea. Their equipment renewal and training guarantee should have been given priority. But now the misappropriation of military funds has hindered the improvement of combat effectiveness of some troops. Isn't this weakening national defense? Isn't this shaking the military heart?

"What's more infuriating is that even the hard-earned money of the common people is being runtrarily squeeated. 1.4 billion Chinese people work hard and pay taxes to support their families. Their money should have been used to improve people's livelihood and build a country, but the wealth of these two trillion yuan flows to overseas luxury resorts. This is the hard-earned money of the people! How many people in China are struggling on the poverty line and worried about education and medical care? But these huge assets were transferred overseas. This is not only economic corruption that violates party discipline, but also moral degradation.

"The hard-earned money of the people should be returned to the people, not become the capital squandered by some people. If these two trillion yuan are used for education, how much can be done? There are now countless out-of-school children, especially in remote mountainous areas, who have drun out of school because of poverty. If these funds were invested in education, schools, teachers and scholarships, the problem of out-of-school children would have been solved long ago. Children should have learned knowledge in the classroom, instead of struggling to survive in the field. Education is the hope of the nation, but corruption masks hope. Isn't this kind of immoral behavior a debt to the people?

"Simililarly, if this about two trillion yuan were used for medical care, China would have achieved free medical care long ago. Although our medical system has made progress, it is difficult to see a doctor and expensive, which still plagues countless families. How many families are depleted by cancer and heart disease? If the embezzled funds are put into medical care, hospitals are built, equipment is purchased, and universal medical insurance is covered, people will not have to worry about expenses when they are sick. This was originally the rightful meaning of socialism, but now the capital has flowed overseas, and the common people are suffering from illness. Who will be responsible for the pain of those patients queuing in the hospital?"

Zhang Youxia sternly warned, "In the past and present, the violence has been the root cause of the boiling people's grievances. Isn't this a deviation from the Party's purpose? Is this still Marx's communism? Can this still build socialism with new Chinese characteristics? In my opinion, it's just a dream for idiots and self-destruction.

"The position of General Secretary is a noble duty to serve the people. Comrade Xi Jinping is trapped in such a serious corruption question, how can he continue to lead the whole party and the whole country? The army should be disciplined, and the Party should be disciplined even more! If you can't set an example, you should take the initiative to take responsibility and accept the trial of Party discipline and national law. Qincheng Prison is a place to punish corruption, where many fallen officials reflect on their repentance. General Secretary Xi Jinping should also face the problem calmly, take the initiative to accept the investigation, take the initiative to live in Qin City, and explain the problem to the organization. This is not a shame, but the embodiment of the Party's self-purification and a responsible attitude towards the people.

"Comrades, my speech is straightforward, but my words are out of public intention. The honor of the army, the security of the country and the well-being of the people cannot be shaken at all. All military and political colleagues here, let's safeguard the purity of the Party and the interests of the people with iron discipline and solid faith.
